A One-Act play to remember By Katherine Davis I was actually in a production of this one-act play. In my opinion it is a fabulous work. From the author of award winning play, "The effect of gamma rays on man in the moon marigolds" comes this haunting, contemporary play. The parents of eight children run off, abandoning their kids. Each child is equally disturbed, one girl develops anorexia, another begins hearing voices in her head, one boy refuses to admit the parents aren't coming back, and all of the others develop problems as well. This play runs about 40 minutes long, and in that time provokes thought and emotion. The author, Paul Zindel weaves allusions to Greek tragic plays into this modern work and does a truly excellent job! Every actor out there should read this play or see it performed. Not only is it a great modern play, but it is helpful to any actor looking for an interesting monologue. Enjoy!
