Lisa Nola : Film Listography: Your Life in Movie Lists before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Film Listography: Your Life in Movie Lists:

Interesting Lists, but a Little RepetitiousBy Headless BobI loved the regular Listography book and plan to buy one and fill it out every 10 years to see how my answers change, so when I (a former film student) heard about the Film Listography book, I had to get it. There are a multitude of good questions, but overall I did not feel that this book was as amazing as the original. Some questions were a little repetitious in nature (i.e. List your favorite movies from the 60's, list your favorite movies from the 70's, etc.). I found myself spending an hour looking up release dates of films. Also, unless you have a gigantic index of films in your head, many of your lists will be very repetitious. It was certainly nice to do to kill some time, but it was not as introspective and creative as the original Listography. 6 of 6 people found the following review helpful. Movie/list buffs will love! By abg02224 In recent years, I've discovered it's becoming more difficult to find a suitable Christmas gift for my picky sister. Typically, I ask for a list and will purchase a couple items off of it but this year I'm changing it up. I've decided to find something she'd enjoy and appreciate but that she hasn't asked for or thought of. Luckily, I've come across the Listography series and had to check this book out. After viewing the first few pages provided on , I bought it. Now that I have it in hand, I know she'll love it! My sister and I are also big "list" people so that should be another plus (I didn't purchase the Music Listography book for myself, heh). I definitely recommend this item for any list and/or movie buff. My dad even flipped through it, perhaps I should get him one too (especially since my mom claims my sister and I get our list-making urges from him, heh). Totally worth the money, a great deal! 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. AWESOME gift for cinephiles By Danielle George I have given this as a gift to multiple people. It's a great gift - it shows you are interested in the person and their unique outlooks and answers they would give, and it can bring you together and be a great conversation starter as well. Asks questions like 'What songs would be in the soundtrack of your life' and 'list best kiss scenes in the movies'. It's a great way to pass the time and a wonderful way to get someone who struggles to write a journal to be a bit more motivated.

FOR FILM LOVERS: Now fans of the smash-hit Listography journal series (over a million copies sold!) can list all their favorite movie picks. Featuring the colorful illustrations of artist Jon Stich throughout, Film Listography boasts over 70 list topics ranging from the classic (favorite films of all time, favorite actors) to the lovably idiosyncratic (top so-bad-it's-good movies, scenes that made you cringe, characters you are most like). A celebration of celluloid that's sure to entertain, this is the ultimate fill-in journal for film fanatics, list lovers, and anyone who appreciates an alternative approach to journaling. Check out our other titles: Spirit, Music, Travel, Literary, Parenthood, Future, a boardgame, and more...

From the Author If I asked you to list the games you played as a child, or the people you've kissed, a colorful assortment of memories would surface that are unique to you. Many of us don't have the time or inclination to write our autobiography, so I created the Listography Books and listography.com to help capture all the experiences that make up your life: a sweet little time capsule. I've rediscovered many lost memories by making lists, and I'm glad I found them. Now that they're in my lists, they'll never be lost to me, and I am creating a map of my experience here on earth. The meditative process of making a list reminds us of how beautiful the details of our life are, and it can inspire us, but most importantly, it's fun! About the Author Lisa Nola is the creator of the Listography Book series and the popular list-making website, listography.com.
