The composed studies are not so practical as there is usually only one, narrow path to victory and this is not very helpful to improve the real play2. The concepts are illustrated by well-chosen examples3. The majority of the book are exercises. As the author puts it "you can do it only if you can do it". I have spent hundreds of hours watching videos and tutorials, but only after trying to solve problems myself I can remember it later. So this approach is great.I definitely recommend this book.0 of 2 people found the following review helpful. Five StarsBy A HGreat book for the intermediate to semi advanced.0 of 3 people found the following review helpful. he tells me this book is very useful.By A HMy son is at USCF 1900 at the moment, he tells me this book is very useful.

Have there been times during a game when you have calculated a position for half an hour, only to find out that most of what you were thinking about was of little use? If you have not, maybe the only way to improve your calculation is to upgrade your processor. But if you are human, then this book will offer you practical advice and an effective training plan to think differently and make decisions far more efficiently. In Calculation thinking methods such as Candidates, Combinations, Prophylaxis, Comparison, Elimination, Intermediate Moves, Imagination and Traps are explained to the reader, and ownership of them is offered through a carefully selected series of exercises. "There is no shortcut to the grandmaster title, but there is a well-known route that many people have walked over the years. Jacob offers to guide you on part of this journey and I hope you will take him up on the offer." From the foreword by Boris Gelfand Grandmaster Jacob Aagaard won the British Championship at his first and only attempt. He has received the Guardian, ECF and ChessCafe Book of the Year awards and the FIDE Senior Trainer title. His training material is used by amateurs and grandmasters alike.
