The writing is like an overextended sales pitch.2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. Italy is the bestBy Duck Monster 80I'm 100% Italian , and I have to go to Capri this place is spectacular . The book was able to help me daydream my way though , until I can afford a plane ticket to Italy . I recommend this book .4 of 5 people found the following review helpful. unexpectedBy Mariathis wasn't at all what I was expecting but it was extremely interesting. I thought it would be more pictures and less text - a kind of decor inspiration but it was quite focussed on entertaining 'capri style'. I was disappointed that there wasn't more about capri architecture and decor but it was a fascinating read all the same.

Jutting proudly out of the Mediterranean Sea, like a miracle of nature, Capri is one of the world's chicest destinations, the European pleasure island. It is a place where well-tanned Italians joyfully share the island's beauty with celebrities and emphatic island lovers: from limoncello, the native digestivo, to its eponymous Capri pants, to the bright turquoise jewelry and bejeweled sandals made famous by its glamorous denizens. In a colorful tribute to the isle adored by literary icons and the jet set alike, author Pamela Fiori explains with resonant texts and vibrant images the effortless charm of this fabled island.

If I could create the island of my dream, I don't believe I could improve on one that already exists. I mean, of course, Capri. Everything about it appeals to me. --. About the Author Pamela Fiori is the editor-in-chief of Town Country, founded in 1846 and the oldest continuously published lifestyle magazine in America. In her distinguished career (which has also included positions at Holiday and Travel + Leisure), she has written countless articles, among them her popular monthly editor's letter for Town Country, and has received several important awards for her accomplishments, such as the Chevalier National du Merite from the French government and the Audrey Hepburn Humanitarian Award.
