By Benjamin Espen
I received this book for free as part of the LibraryThing Early Reviewers Program. This is a great book. And I'm a huge Star Wars nerd, which is why I think it's a great book. Hear me out, this one is really well done. First, it is simply well made. Nicely laid out, heavy paper with a satin finish, and a fine attention to detail that warms my OCD heart. Of course, it is also full of Star Wars trivia. Like what is the speed of various ships in MGLT (megalights per hour). Or all the times someone said "I have a bad feeling about this...." Perhaps the single best graphic in the book is this, a chart of all the books, movies, TV shows, videogames, and comic books that are considered part of Disney's new canon. Everything else got swept into the Legends category by Disney, although some fan favorites have been brought back. This book is a great buy for any Star Wars fan, or even just a lover of nicely done graphics. I even learned a few things about the characters who have been introduced into the new storyline. Well worth your time and money.

I've so been looking forward to the next Super Graphic! And the Star Wars edition does not disappoint! There's a great mix of data, detail, and humor. There are charts that help make sense of how elements in the big, sprawling Star Wars universe fit together and other charts that take a deep dive into some detail that may have been otherwise overlooked. The charts are pretty, easy to understand, and informative. Good for casual consumers and Star Wars obsessives. So happy to have this book!

Graphic design guru Tim Leong presents Star Wars trivia in an all-new way through playful pie charts, bar graphs, and other data-driven infographics. From a Venn diagram of Yoda's idiosyncrasies to an organizational chart of the Empire to a line graph of Grand Moff Tarkin's management decisions, Star Wars Super Graphic shines a new light on the much-adored universe. Equal parts playful and informative, this visual love letter to the vast Star Wars universe will enchant fans of all ages.
